

About Us

I believe that architecture is the art of creating spaces for people to enjoy – even love – being in.

Not just for a short time but as long as they choose to live, or work, there.

My satisfaction comes from working with clients who, usually have some idea of what they want but want me to take ideas further, to be innovative, to stretch the imagination. It's a process that can result in great design and the evolution of special places and spaces.

I've worked in large architectural companies. For the past five years I've developed my own practice. I chose this path because it offers the best opportunity to develop relationships with clients that allow us both to express ourselves, to bring concepts to reality and to be proud of them.

That's the best thing an architect can hope for.
